This is a game for two people to play.

One player is proud Icarus, whose goal is to escape the island Crete by flying away on wings made of wax.

The other player is the breaking sun, whose goal is to make Icarus work for it.

Whoever wants it most picks their role first.

Now take flight. Sit across from the other player, & slowly move your faces towards one another. Tilt your heads so that your lips are aligned.

Get as close as you can without touching the other player.

Sit there until you can't.

If Icarus pulls away first, his wax wings melt under the heat, & he tumbles headlong into the sea.

If the Sun pulls away first, Icarus safely soars through the sky, defying both man & god.

If the players touch each other's faces in any way, Icarus collides with the sun & they each erupt into a fire which scalds heaven & boils the earth. The island Crete is tastefully poached in the newly roiling ocean.
